

Chiron's Bridge November 2007 Newsletter

Mars went Retrograde in Cancer

Mars is retrograde from November 15th, 2007 through January 30th, 2008. About every two years fired up Mars goes retrograde. When a planet turns retrograde its principles come to the forefront.

At its fiery best Mars represents action, impulsiveness, independence and starting something new. At its fiery worst Mars is combative, argumentative and likes to start wars.

Mars in Cancer can be extremely sensitive and can be even more war like than other Mars retrograde. It has a tendency to perceive more ominous intentions in other people's actions than perhaps were meant.

Generally speaking, Mars retrograde periods are not the best time to start something new, such as a job. It's also not the best time to initiate a fight or dispute for the aggressor tends to lose. It definitely is not the best time to start a war or initiate military action against another country.

Mars also rules surgery. If possible, individuals are advised to avoid surgical procedures during this time. Since Mars also rules physical activity it's a time to be careful of physical injury. In sports a surge of injuries to well known athletes might be noted. On a positive note Mars is associated with nearly superhuman feats. Athletic, sporting or other competition records may be broken by those who are disciplined, train well and pace themselves accordingly.

This period favors research efforts and repairs. For those inclined to study this could be a time of discovery after a long, hard effort. For those mechanically inclined or self-employed this period may show a great increase in work demands.

The potential for accidents or violence is stronger during this period. Mars retrograde tends to bring out impatience, carelessness, frustration, and anger in us. So, remember to be careful out there and, if you can, play nice with the other kids and manifest your dreams!
